“ I met Ben when Susan introduced us in the parking lot where she worked as my supervisor. A tough job but with a Harley riding husband like Ben, I wasn't worried about her. I send my deepest sympathies to you, Susan, and the children who've lost a good & honest daddy. My heart aches for the entire family. Gone much too soon. And Susan, I love you & am so very sorry to learn of this tragic, untimely death.

“ I remember when Ben tried to teach me how to ride his little red motorcycle when me and mom visited grandpa and grandma. I also remember when we caught lightening bugs out in the yard. I also remember the fishing pond and the scary bridge. Say hello to grandpa and grandma for me Ben.

“ I remember the day I met that man over a decade ago. I can still remember what he was wearing. I turned around and looked into the eyes of the most handsome man I had ever seen. I couldn't believe someone that good looking could be interested in me. All night long he kept asking for my number, which I would never give him. Finally, I gave him a tiny piece of paper with my name on it (which he kept in his wallet for years). Before I even got home that night, he had left me three messages. When I walked in my house, the phone was ringing again--it was on from there.

Ben- I don't have to tell you how much I love you because you already know. Thank you for the craziest, most exciting, most heart breaking, heart healing last 10 years of my life.

You meant and mean everything to me. I will always be yours.

“ I'm praying for you all today. I didn't know Ben very well, but I remember what a great job he did building that cabin in the woods and how much fun he had showing it to us one day.

“ We remember Dad as funny, sleepy, and hard-working. There are so many memories to share but, not enough room to share them all. Colton remembers the time they took a trip to Minnesota. They went sledding (Dad fell in the snow a lot), they took a train to a football game (Vikings vs Bears) and the Vikings won the game, and Colton received a yard of gumballs from Dad (which made him very happy).

R.I.P. Benjamin Carl Hegwood you will be surely missed.

“ Work with Susan and have known Susan and Ben for quite a while. I'll never forget the multitude of roses and flowers that he always got for her. You couldn't walk by her office without seeing them. Will miss him calling to talk to her at work and of course seeing my friend suffer this great loss. Prayers for his family and know it is a loving close family. He was so obviously loved. Such a handsome man. Many prayers for peace during this difficult time. You will reunite again. From the staff at ATS, we love you Susan!
