“Losing a family member is never easy. You just hope with your whole heart that they are saved and praising the Lord in heaven. I have many memories of my Nanaw before she suffered from the horrific disease of Alzheimer's. I have many memories of her fishing, dancing and singing, watching her favorite shows like Walker Texas Ranger, Murder She Wrote, and The Golden Girls. Memories of her in the garden, she taught us how to shell peas and shuck corn, she loved being outside metal detecting, she loved her dogs, and had a love of cats, she loved Elvis, my daddy can sing just like him, and I can remember her telling me to play Jailhouse Rock at her funeral. She would keep a drawer for us grand-kids with jerky and snickers for us to eat. She always made sure my brother and I had chicken nuggets or something we liked if we went to her house after school. She couldn't swim and was afraid of water so she would only let us fill our bath up a few inches because she was scared. I hated bathing at her house. She was awnry, and she didn't mind telling you what she thought. She did hair for many years and loved her church. One of the memories I cling to is her reading her bible to me when I spent the night with her. She enjoyed sitting and doing crossword puzzles, but I remember that her bible was always sitting there, she would read it and then read it to me. Even though watching her go from the grandmother I grew up with to a stranger that didn't know me, or my family anymore was the hardest part, it still isn't easy saying a final goodbye. Thank you God for your grace and mercy, she would have never wanted to live like that. Thank you God for letting us have her the many years that we did, and thank you God for giving us the chance to be with you in eternity. This life is not what matters, but where we are spending eternity is what matters. I will choose to believe that she is in heaven now praising her Father and touching Jesus. I will always love you Nanaw! See you again!
