“ I love and miss you so very much, MOM! I can't believe your gone! You are the strongest woman I've ever known and I'll be even half the woman you are- but I'm
So very proud to carry your blood inside of me and I will always carry and cherish deep within me every thing you've taught me my whole life! I don't even know how to even try to start life without you here in mine- in 50 years- I've NEVER known how it feels to not have you here UNTIL NOW. I can still remember the sound of your voice, your laugh, all your long conversations, and so many more things... I love and miss you so much that it's hard to breathe... my heart is so broken and torn into... I'm so numb all the way to my soul and even deeper.. I'm ordering your flowers and clothes as I'm praying for strength to be able to let you go on Saturday... the only peace I feel is knowing your no longer in pain, and that you are now with the Lord. I want you to know the Day God reunites me with you again- I'll run as fast as my feet will carry me to grab you and hug your neck again and I promise I'll never let you go again.. please look down on me every now n then and protect my path until ours cross again... you are so beautiful and although I'll live the rest of my life with pain of the huge void you left inside of me- and so many others- I'll hold my head high and be proud that God saw fit to give me you as my mom. I'll cherish every single memory I have deep within me never to let them go. RIP my beautiful mother Thank you for all that I am because of you! Fly high and I'll see you soon on the other side!!! ☐☐☐.

Your daughter, Beverly Ranae
