“ Son, I know you are there.... with your brother Tim, right now. Do Moma a huge favor and give him one of those BIG bear hugs from Moma & tell him how much we love & still miss him each and every day. And while you boys are enjoying being together "again" just to let you BOTH know...I have My Momma keeping her eyes on you both, until I join you there. Sooooo no crazy stuff in Heaven, ok boys?? I will forgive each of you for breaking OUR hearts this way...I know you never meant to cause your family the sorrow and pain...that the death of BOTH my sons has caused so many that love you both. I will NEVER understand WHY...so you both better come up with some darn good excuses THIS time!! And, don't try to blame the other one as you both have tried to do in the past. Just keep an close eye on your children you each left behind....just because you decided to take the easy way out ...does NOT mean you still are finished with your responsibilities that you both have in taking care of these beautiful children you help to create & left behind/ You will continue to be My handsome sons even up there in Heaven. I will Love you both as I did before you left me, so unexpected...with the deepest LOVE a Mother can have for her children.

My heart hurts to hug you one more time, to look into those smiling faces and to kiss your lips... in our own lil "Mom poochy Kiss" that we shared before, we always parted. I will miss them SO MUCH son!! Love & Miss you forever and always...your broken hearted Mother....

“ I honestly don't know what to say. Still in shock. It seems like just yesterday you were riding over to my house in the snow, and you and Willow coming to hang out with me right after Noah was born. Our friendship came at a time we both needed someone to lean on, I wish I could have been a stronger tree for you. Thank you for going to such lengths you did for my kids, I could tell by how wonderful Raine Willow and Cove are that I was lucky for your help.
